Serving the White House Free. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.-The turkey that graced the White House table to-day was a magnificent bird. It was furnished by Horace Vose, of Rhode Island, who for thirty years past has furnished the White House turkey for Thanksgiving. Vose has a reputation throughout New England as the turspecialty of raising fine gobblers. Early in Grant's administration he picked out a was acknowledged in a graceful note, which so pleased the rugged New Englander that he sent another the following year and has since continued the practice. His only reward is a polite note of thanks, but Vose has as a result attained a national reputatice of presenting a turkey to each married time to-day. In the past it has been found necessary to employ three or four different sets of china service when a large company was to be entertained, but now the White House is fully equipped in this direction. The new service is made up of 1,300 pieces, each of which bears the great seal of the

The President spent the greater part of Thanksgiving day with his family and personal friends, devoting only a few minutes in the forenoon to the duties of his office. He left the White House about 10 o'clock in a carriage, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt. They were driven to the suburbs, where they joined a number of friends in an extended horseback ride, from which they did not return until luncheon. The afternoon was spent at the White House. The day was quietly observed throughout the city. Neither house of Congress was in session and all the departments were

XXX According to Consul Skinner, the French people face much the same problem as that confronting the United States in respect to their merchant marine. Ships are more expensive to build and to operate in France | He followed the services attentively, occathan in almost any other European country, and to overcome these inequalities a policy of direct subsidies to certain of the more important lines, and of premiums based upon service to other lines, has been in force for many years. A few months ago a new law was passed, admitting to certain benefits new tonnage, to be limited to 500,000 tons in the case of steam vessels and to 100,000 tons in the case of sailing vessels. The law limited the premium for equipping such ships and for their navi-gation to about $30,000,000. This law proved such a big stimulant to shipbuilding that almost the entire premium for this year has been exhausted. In consequence of this insufficiency of credit some of the shipyards are closed entirely, some are running with reduced forces and the depreswhich existed in the industry a number of years ago prevails again to-day. Minister Varilla calls special attention to the fact that the message received by him is signed not only by the members of the junta, but also by the minister of foreign relations, which, he says, gives the communication the character of a formal decree of the government. The action taken by the Panama junta doubtless is due in part, at least, to the urgent representations of Minister Varilla that prompt steps be taken vith a view to the ratification of the treaty as soon as it shall reach Panama. Last Saturday the minister cabled a long synopsis of the treaty to Fanama, and since that time had been in communication with the govern-

Why Colombian Ports Were Closed to Vessels from Colon.

COLON. Nov. 26.-The text of the decree closing the ports of the Department of Bolivar reached here to-day. It prohibits until further notice all traffic or business between the ports in that department and the "Department of Panama," and says: "The government of Panama having declared itself free and independent, and having taken up arms against the national government in efforts to destroy Colombian integrity, lignity and honor, Colombia requires the employment of such measures as are indispensable for the punishment and suppression of traitors. The act closing the ports mentioned is taken by the government of Bolivar, independent of the Colombian government. Bolivar can do all she desires necessary for the defense the State, and among the measures which the legitimate ends of war warrant is the depriving of the enemy of resources and the free traffic of commerce." The decree provides also that neutral vessels having called at Panama ports shall be refused admission to ports of Bolivar. The royal mail steamer Trent returned here to-day from ports on the coast. She landed some of the Bolivarian commissioners at Savanilla Nov. 21, shortly after the arrival of the decree closing that port to vessels to and from Colon was published and sailed thence for Cartagena, where she was only cllowed to communicate with the shore because she had the Cartagena commissioners from Colon on board. AMERICAN SOCIETY BANQUET

THANKSGIVING DAY CELEBRATED BY "EXILES" IN LONDON.

Special Services, Receptions and Dinners at Berlin, Vienna, Rome and Elsewhere Abroad.

LONDON, Nov. 26 .- Thanksgiving day was celebrated by the American Society in newspaper of the conservative school, pub- London at a banquet given at the Hotel William Jennings Bryan was the guest of honor. The speeches, while flavored by the usual seasonable cheer and references to Anglo-American friendliness, developed particularly into a duel of repartee, goodnatured, but almost subacid, between Mr. Bryan and Ambassador Choate.

> There were a number of notable guests at the banquet, including the Duke of Marlborough. The Duke of Marlborough proposed a toast to President Roosevelt, and, addressing himself to the interests which England and the United States have in common, referred in terms of the highest praise to President Roosevelt and spoke feelingly of the late Sir Michael Herbert.

> Ambassador Choate, responding to the toast to his health, which was proposed in complimentary terms by Lord Davey, took up the Duke of Marlborough's reference to the mutual sympathies of the American and British peoples and said that there had been reason heretofore to suspect some such sentiment on the part of the duke, since he had set an example in one form of the Anglo-American alliance on which the people of both countries were able to look with entire approval.

Turning to Mr. Bryan Mr. Choate said it was the custom of Americans torns from their native shores to gather annually and return thanks. The American Society

London had now among them another these exiles, for whom, personally, he, as ambassador, had been doing the best be could. He had taken Mr. Bryan to visit the Bank of England, where he was able to study the fiscal question in its native lair. The company would be edified, said Mr. Choate, had they heard Mr. Bryan cross-examining the governor of the Bank of England. The ambassador said he had aided Mr. Bryan to hear Mr. Asquith, Mr. Chamberlain, Lord Goschen and Lord I bery, all within forty-eighth hours, so if his mixed they would appreciate at least the quality of the man they had before them. The speech of the ambassador was fol-lowed by an ovation to Mr. Bryan, which lasted for several minutes. Mr. Bryan, in responding, paid a graceful tribute to the English guests of the society. He said the that in looking over the tables he was table to distinguish the English from American present. He thanked the Brit shown in receiving him, the protect for letting him land at all and the gol for not having despoiled him immediate after his arrival. Mr. Bryan said he h profited exceedingly by his visit to the Bank of England. He wanted to call attention, however, to the fact that the murderous attack by an insane man with a revolver on Mr. Kenneth Graham, the secretary of the bank, occurred the day before he called. Touching the theme of Thanksgiving day Mr. Bryan spoke eloquently of the natural resources and advantages of the United States for which the people must retur thanks to God, and of the ideals of libert and progress, for which they must the their English progenitors. He urged the necessity of the present generation queathing to posterity some gift comfrom their incestors and suggested that they bequea, h the ideal of international amity, of which The Hague arbitra tribunal was a lasting monument. "Hall to the nation," concluded Mr. Bryan, "whatever her name, who leads the world towards the higher ideal for the lasting good of all humanity."
